

Abstract

An object of the present invention is to provide an optical transmitter that can suppress degradation of distortion characteristic and RIN characteristic caused by relaxation oscillation at high temperature by controlling average driving current of a light emitting element so that the average optical output power of the light emitting element is increased as the temperature increases like a case where the environmental temperature around the light emitting element increases.